DETAILED ACTION

Allowable Subject Matter

1. Claims 35,36,38,39,44,45,47, and 48 are objected to as being dependent upon a rejected base claim, but would be allowable if rewritten in independent form including all of the limitations of the base claim and any intervening claims.

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 102

2. The following is a quotation of the appropriate paragraphs of 35 U.S.C. 102 that form the basis for the rejections under this section made in this Office action:

A person shall be entitled to a patent unless –

(b) the invention was patented or described in a printed publication in this or a foreign country or in public use or on sale in this country, more than one year prior to the date of application for patent in the United States.

3. Claims 1-34,37,40-43, and 46 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 102(b) as being anticipated by Jacobs et al (5778338).

As per claims 1,13,17, and 20, Jacobs et al (5778338) teaches a speech encoding system detecting a transition during speech (col. 14 lines 52-61); an encoder performing an encoding scheme to preprocess the signal based on a voicing of the signal (as varying the encoding scheme based on the degree of voice of the signal -- col. 3 lines 1-11; col. 14 lines 6-51); a selector for choosing a second encoding scheme (as selecting different encoding based on encoding rates – col. 14 lines 24-61).

As per claims 2-4,14,15,18,32, and 41, Jacobs et al (5778338) teaches determining the speech characteristic between voiced, unvoiced, or noise (col. 14 lines 52-61).

As per claim 5,6, and 16, Jacobs et al (5778338) teaches perceptual filtering and a pitch preprocessing module determining a target signal for time warping (as input speech being modified by the closed loop and open loop format residual equations -- fig. 14, subblock 570-576; thru the pitch synth filter (fig. 14, subblock 552; figs. 16,18, and 19)); and pitch tracking (as pitch preprocessing and calculating the varying pitch lag -- col. 8 lines 26-46).

As per claims 7,31,40, Jacobs et al (5778338) teaches fixed codebook (col. 38 lines 1-24), adapted codebook use for storing residual samples of LPC coefficients (col. 30 lines 28-36)

As per claims 8-10, 19,21-23,26-28, Jacobs et al (5778338) teaches bit allocation dependent upon the various thresholds, wherein the bit allocation is in the form of a quadratic ratio (col. 14 lines 15-16; col. 16 lines 49-67).

As per claims 11,24,29, Jacobs et al (5778338) teaches full rate coding determining a voicing level, that is, voice and/or noise (col. 14 lines 15-61).

As per claims 12,25,30,34,37,43,46, Jacobs et al (5778338) teaches selecting multiple encoding rates based on bit rate (col. 7 line 53 – col. 8 line 41 -- note the differing rates).

As per claims 31 and 40, Jacobs et al (5778338) teaches receiving a speech frame for encoding (as input speech, Fig. 8), classifying the speech frame as voiced if the speech includes a voicing component (col. 3 lines 1-9), designating the speech frame as stationary or non-stationary if the speech frame is as such (as determining, not only two levels of speech, but multiple levels of speech, or the degree of voicing, --col. 14 lines 6-51); and allocating a lesser number of bits for the voice speech frame than for the non-stationary voice speech frame (as bit allocation dependent upon various thresholds -- col. 14 lines 15-16, col. 16 lines 49-67, wherein the voiced frame receives less number of bits).

As per claims 33 and 42, Jacobs et al (5778338) teaches outputting/transmitting data (fig. 5).
